Nutrition and Herbal Medicine

Vanessa is a highly qualified natural medicine practitioner with over 20 years' experience as a naturopathic practitioner. She is experienced at getting to the heart of each person's health issue, correcting underlying imbalances and restoring her client's energy levels, happiness and passion for life, through the use of evidence based natural medicine, individualised nutrition, herbal medicine, dietary and lifestyle advice.

Areas of focus

Vanessa's focus is on improving health and wellbeing through effective detoxification, digestive, hormonal and endocrine support, and through the use of genetic and functional testing.

Main therapeutic interests:

- Hormonal health
- Thyroid health
- Adrenal health
- Nutrigenomics

Natural Medicine Tele-Consultations online

The first consultation (called an 'Initial consultation') is longer than a GP's visit because it includes a comprehensive case history, dietary breakdown, family history and physical assessment, as we uncover underlying imbalances which might be hindering health and prioritise areas of focus for your personalised naturopathic support program. For more information go to

Online Natural Medicine support

You will receive a natural medicine support program, designed specifically for you, outlining areas of focus for your health. This can be divided into three main categories:

- Dietary and lifestyle advice - based on your individual requirements, health status and any food intolerances.
- Nutritional and herbal supplementation – a specific supplementation program designed to correct any nutrient deficiencies and support your body's optimal wellness.
- Further testing – Sometimes, we may need to investigate further and test for metabolic, gastrointestinal, hormonal or specific imbalances which may be affecting your health. You may be given referrals and instructions for general and functional pathology laboratories.

Coaching sessions for practitioners and students

Private coaching sessions are available for practitioners and student practitioners, who have tricky cases. Have a one-to-one online appointment with Vanessa Hitch and review your cases in a personalised and comprehensive manner.
